HAPPY HOLIDAYS

The Holiday Season is almost here! On behalf of the Sabourin Deraspe team, we take this opportunity to wish you and your loved ones Happy Holidays. And may the coming New Year bring you joy, happiness, prosperity and health.

Looking forward to see you again, we thank you for your trust.

Francis, Gilles and Josée

PS: Stay tuned for all the details about our annual conference, which will be presented through WebEx, this new mode of videoconferencing that we presented to you last September.

FOUR WAYS TO MAKE THE MOST OF INHERITANCE DOLLARS

My father was having a conversation with our youngest son recently. "When I'm gone, I'm going to leave you the farm," my father said. "The entire farm - including the livestock, crops, tractor, the farmhouse and a few million in cash," he continued. We weren't expecting this news. My son then said: "Wow, Grandpa! Thanks! I didn't even know you had a farm. Where is it?" My father looked at our son and said: "Facebook."

My dad was referring, of course, to the game FarmVille. As it turns out, my kids won't be inheriting a large operating farm from Grandpa after all...

THE ROCKEFELLERS DIDN'T SPOIL THEIR KIDS: GRANDPARENTS CAN LEARN A LESSON OR TWO

Baby Boomers, there is no doubt that we spoil our grandchildren. So, why do we still point out to our children how shocking it is when we show up at their doorstep and hear our grandkid's say, "What did you bring me, grandma and grandpa?"

We conditioned our grandchildren to expect things; they were not born with this entitlement. And, although we're partly to blame, it is not solely on our shoulders. Our children have raised these kids to receive "stuff" rather than time from their busy parents. Is this, "I want, I want" generations' attitude really something we want to support?
